CHANGE PROPOSED IN BULLION TAX LAW

At the next session of the legislature there promises to come up legislation looking to the revision of the bullion tax law of the state, such legislation was smothered during the last legislature. In several sections the mining men are already discussing the matter and as a means of forming a basis for a general discussion, H. C. Jones, a mining man of Tonopah, was asked to prepare a paper for the Mining Congress on the "Bullion Tax Law of Nevada." The paper was submitted to the congress during the session held at Tonopah. We give extracts from the paper as follows:

"A system of taxation which is sufficiently comprehensive to meet the requirements of a state, and at the same time be just and equitable, is a matter of growth and evolution.

"Theories may take their place as building material now and then, solidifying into what is staunchest and best, but should not be given power for good or ill until they have gone through the perfecting influence of the crucible of experience.

"Another element which must be reckoned with in the consideration of a taxing system is that of public sentiment. Public sentiment is usually the equivalent of an official command, and no great reform can be accomplished except by educating the people in respect to existing evils, and obtaining their approval of proposed modifications.

"In presenting this paper to the 1th American Mining Congress, I am by no means unmindful of the fact that the subject under discussion is not a new one, and that it is possible that all that is worth saying has already been said, it, however, is axiomatic that as long as a wrong has not been righted or a mistake corrected, it is the duty of every man to raise his voice in no uncertain terms in behalf of what he himself believes to be right.

"In approaching this subject, our first duty is to consider the various laws enacted by our sister mining states relating to the bullion tax question, and if we find that experience has taught them what is wisest and best, we should allow ourselves to be benefitted by it. If we find that by a thorough consideration of this matter they have enacted laws which are manifestly sound and just, it is our duty to weigh well the result of their experience so that we may be able to segregate the good from the bad.

"Under the law of Ontario, every mine whose annual profits are more than $10,000 shall pay on the excess over this amount an annual tax of 3 per cent. From the gross receipts are deducted the cost of all transportation, expenses of working the mine, including wages, construction of mills, reduction works, smelters, explosives, insurance, depreciation or wear and tear of property, cost of work, and to the development and maintenance of the property.

"If you will take into consideration the wide scope covered by the Ontario law and the broad incentive to mining investments it offers, I believe you will readily conclude that it is a wise and just measure.

"You will observe that the Nevada law does not exempt a single item of expense to encourage the mine owners of this state to build mills, smelters and reduction works for the purpose of treating their ores at home.

"Nevada is essentially a mining state, and any condition that affects the mines affects every other industry in the state in regular proportion.

"Governor Dickerson in his message to the last legislature of Nevada, properly emphasizes the important place in the state occupied by mining in its every phase. I do not agree with him however, in the broad statement that Nevada is dependant on foreign capital for its development, and I do not think his assertion well considered in view of the fact that this grand old battle-born state has produced and is producing now, sufficient wealth to meet her every need were it utilized at home.

"Heretofore our state has been very largely, and is still to an extent, dependant on the outside world for the money needed to develop our mines, therefore we owe it as a sacred duty to our state to encourage capital to come to us for investment, and to shield and safeguard it when hereby enacting such laws as will properly protect the interests of all, and I would urge that we go still further, and place upon our statute books, laws founded upon justice, wisdom and right, that would protect such investment from any possibility of double taxation, and unreasonable discrimination."

OUT FOR CONGRESS.

Frank Williams of Good Springs Has Announced His Candidacy.

Hon. Frank Williams of Good Springs, miner, former assemblyman, present regent of the State University and enthusiastic citizen of Clark county, has given the Clark County Review authority to state that he will be a candidate for Congress at the state primaries next year.

Mr. Williams is well known to all the older residents of southern Nevada and his enterprise will soon make him known to the newer population. He came to Good Springs from Kansas 17 years ago and has worked in the mines in this vicinity ever since.

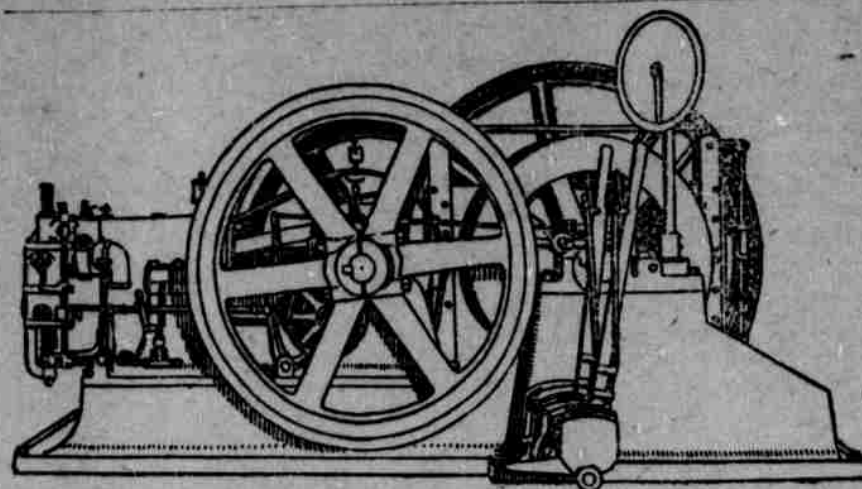

During recent years he has been an important factor in state and county politics. While in the legislature he made a special study of state revenue matter, and is the author of the proposed constitutional amendment changing the poll tax into a road tax.

While the Review has no authentic information on the subject, it is generally understood that Congressman Bartlett has about concluded to become a candidate for governor, and this fact probably explains Mr. Williams' early decision to enter the congressional contest.

Court At Las Vegas.

Court will convene Monday, October 25th, at 10 A. M. in the opera house. The law and motion calendar will be called at the opening of court and civil cases which are to be tried without juries, will be expected to be ready for prompt setting and trial. A trial jury will be in attendance on Tuesday November 2. Grand and trial juries were drawn on Wednesday last.—Las Vegas Age.
